

Ohio's Fall Foliage

Western Reserve Fall Foliage Driving Tour – 56 miles

Among the rolling hills along Lake Erie's shore, the roads of northeast Ohio are lined with trees displaying an astonishing spectrum of colors. Starting at Holden Arboretum, one of the nation's largest horticultural centers, visitors will be delighted by ancient and new specimens of trees, ranging from oaks and maples to hawthorn and crabapple, each variety displaying a slightly different hue. Travel along Route 44 to the quaint town of Chardon, where antique shops and white picket fences remind visitors of simpler times. Turn east on Route 87 and enter Burton, another historic Western Reserve town, with a log cabin where maple syrup is made on the town square, Victorian homes and historic Century Village. Heading farther east, Middlefield and Mesopotamia are home to a thriving Amish community. Watch as they clip-clop by in their buggies and harvest crops from their fertile fields. At Mesopotamia, turn north onto Route 534, ending your trip with a sip of wine at Ferrante Winery in Harpersfield.
